2.3.2 ii Tutorial

Assigning pre-tutorial readings or activities to prepare students for in-depth discussions and problem-solving during the tutorial session.

Operations Management
Tutorial - II
V. Venu Page

1) In a welding shop, a time study was done on a welding operation. One experienced industrial engineer and one experienced engineer conducted the study simultaneously. They agreed previously on cycle time (known below) but their opinion on rating the worker differed.

The experienced engineer rated the worker 80% and the other engineer rated the worker 100%. They used 10% allowance.

Cycle Time (in minutes)	No. of times observed
28	1
32	1

From the above information:

- Determine the standard time using the experienced engineer's worker rating.
- Find the standard time using the worker rating of experienced industrial engineer.
- Comment on the reliability of time study engineer.

Solution:

a) Rating the worker at 100% by the experienced industrial engineer.

Cycle Time (CT) = (20x2) + (25x1) + (28x1) + (32x1)
= 105 minutes

Normal time (NT) = CT x PR
= 105 x 100%
= 105 minutes

Standard Time (ST) = (NT) / (1 - 10%)
= 105 / (1 - 0.10)
= 116.67 minutes

b) Rating the worker at 80% by the inexperienced industrial engineer.

Cycle Time (CT) = 105 minutes

Normal time (NT) = CT x PR
= 105 x 80%
= 84 minutes

Standard Time (ST) = (NT) / (1 - 10%)
= 84 / (1 - 0.10)
= 93.33 minutes

Comment: The consistency in rating 100% can be improved by repeatedly using rating films.
